Investment Objective

Achieve long-term capital growth by investing primarily in equities from Canadian issuers listed on a recognized local stock market.

Investment Process

The fund's assets are invested in a well-diversified portfolio of equities listed on a recognized Canadian stock market.

Portfolios are well-diversified by sectors and industries. Liquidities are used to preserve capital when market conditions are unfavourable and may be held to manage cash position, as well as for strategic purposes.

The portfolio's core consists of securities from large and well-capitalized companies (S&P/TSX), which offer diverse participation in the Canadian economy, while ensuring portfolio liquidity. Securities from small- and mid-cap companies with increased long-term dividends complement this core.

Visual support of quarterly comments

After an excellent end of 2017, the Canadian stock market started the quarter calmly, with little variation. From the third week of January, everything suddenly changed. The S&P/TSX index lost more than 7% over 15 days, in line with its American counterpart. Volatility indices jumped to levels that had not been seen since 2015 as investor confidence, which had seemed unshakable for some quarters, eroded somewhat. The rest of the quarter followed the same scenario—sudden changes in the perception of markets generating significant daily movements in market prices.

Throughout the quarter, we maintained our defensive approach that began at the end of 2017, which allowed us to maintain a performance slightly above that of our benchmark (S&P/TSX). Our overexposure to the energy sector cost us a few basis points, but the quality of the companies held in the portfolio, such as Parkland Fuel Corp or Suncor Energy, has largely offset this, generating an added value of more than 1% against the index. Conversely, our investments in certain companies such as Alimentation Couche-Tard or Canadian National Railway had a negative effect on our performance following bad news during recent quarterly results. However, our trust in these companies remains intact, as their structure and philosophy remain unchanged and we continue to believe that these investments will serve us well in the long term, as they have done so well in the past. While concerns about NAFTA and corporate and consumer debt levels remain, we believe that the Canadian market discount to the S&P 500 is at very low levels and could contribute to an interesting return for the Canadian stock market.

Performance is calculated on net basis of management, operational, transaction and administrative fees. Data from "Active Return Attribution Summary" and main positive and negative fund contributions come from the Bloomberg system. The performance calculated by the Bloomberg system is an estimation and may vary from actual performance due to the information update method, the return calculation method and costs associated with the fund. The top 5 and bottom 5 performers list (Total return YTD) explains the performance of the securities since the beginning of the year or since the addition of the security if it was made later than January 1st.
